

NEW EDUCATORS AT WAGNER PROGRAM

The New Educators at Wagner program last night gave the first of what it hopes will be a group of annual awards to recognize distinguished Staten Island educators. The program took place in Wagner College's Foundation Hall. The winners of the inaugural Distinguished Educator Awards, standing from left, are Gary Giordano, the Susan Wagner High School principal; Hank Murphy, representing the Murphy family; Frank Mazza, a teacher at Staten Island Technical High School; David Gordon, Wagner College education professor; Tim Gannon, the Port Richmond High School principal who received the Hank Murphy Award; and Richard Guarasci, the Wagner College president. Seated, from left, are Stephen Preskill, the outgoing Wagner College education department chairman; Lisa Pollari, the Port Richmond High School assistant principal; Carin Guarasci, the New Educators at Wagner director, and Karen DeMoss, the incoming Wagner College education department chairwoman.